Mayor Debra Wimpee presented Item 26-200 and proclaimed April 8, 2026, as Ernest Childers Day in Broken Arrow, honoring the hometown Medal of Honor recipient for his extraordinary bravery during World War II. The proclamation recognized his historic distinction as the first Native American Medal of Honor recipient in the war and called on the community to remember his service and the sacrifices of all veterans.

Elaine Childers expressed gratitude for honoring her father, Ernest Childers, describing him as a kind and attentive person who made everyone he spoke with feel valued and heard. She emphasized his character and warmth, noting she is always appreciative of opportunities to recognize his legacy.

Grover Wind, Secretary of Veteran's Affairs with Muscogee Nation, thanked the City of Broken Arrow for honoring Ernest Childers and spoke about his legacy as a symbol of Native American warrior values. He highlighted Childers' extraordinary bravery during combat—continuing to lead despite injury, using ingenuity under fire, and prioritizing the safety of his men above himself. Wendt emphasized that Childers embodied the true spirit of a “warrior,” defined by protecting others and serving his people with honor and courage.

B. 26-445 Presentation of a Proclamation by Mayor Debra Wimpee declaring the month of April 2026, as "Safe Digging Month" in Broken Arrow, Oklahoma

Mayor Debra Wimpee presented Item 26-445 and proclaimed April 2026 as Safe Digging Month in Broken Arrow, emphasizing the importance of protecting underground utilities and public safety. The proclamation encouraged residents and contractors to call 811 before digging, wait for utility markings, and follow safe excavation practices to prevent accidents, service disruptions, and damage to critical infrastructure.

C. 26-483 Recognition of Broken Arrow Citizens, City Council, Employees, and Community Partners for Collaborative Efforts Regarding the 2026 General Obligation Bond Package

City Manager Michael Spurgeon presented Item 26-483 and marked the culmination of a two-and-a-half-year process to develop the city's general obligation bond package, thanking the City Council for its leadership and vision and emphasizing that the initiative was community-driven. He highlighted extensive public engagement, noting hundreds of citizens participated over two years, and more than 1,500 attended nearly 70 meetings during the final outreach phase.

He also recognized city staff, the communications team, consultants, and key community partners—including the school district, Chamber, citizen committees, and local organizations—for their contributions. Spurgeon stressed that transparency was a defining feature of the process, citing surveys, meetings, and outreach efforts, and expressed pride in the collaboration as the city awaited the election results.

8. Citizens' Opportunity to Address the Council on General Topics Related to City Business or Services (No action may be taken on matters under this item)

Edna Osborn praised the City Council and staff for the significant improvements in Broken Arrow since she moved there in 2006, highlighting the city's beauty, development, and quality of schools. While expressing pride in the progress, she noted ongoing concerns about infrastructure, particularly street widening and drainage in her neighborhood. She affirmed her commitment to her home and community, encouraged unity among residents, and voiced appreciation for incorporating prayer into council meetings.

9. General Council Business

A. 26-439 Consideration, discussion, and possible approval of BAZ-002651-2026 (Rezoning), The Pines IV, approximately 119.05 acres, A-1 (Agricultural) to RS (Single Family Residential), located one-quarter mile south of Omaha Street (51st Street), west of 37th Street (209th E. Avenue)

Rocky Henkel, Director of Community Development, presented Item 26-439. This item involves a rezoning request for approximately 119 acres to allow a single-family residential development (The Pines). While the applicant originally requested RSP zoning, the Planning Commission recommended a less intense RS zoning to match better the surrounding development, which the applicant accepted. Public comments raised questions about layout and development, and staff recommended approval of the rezoning as modified by the Planning Commission.

Dennis M Koch, a nearby resident, opposed the proposed development, explaining his family chose their home for its wooded surroundings and were told the area would remain undeveloped. He expressed concern that removing the trees would diminish the quality of life and potentially force residents to move. He also raised safety concerns, noting that the new development would increase traffic on a currently quiet street where children frequently play.

The discussion acknowledged the resident's concerns about increased traffic and loss of the wooded area. Staff clarified that the existing neighborhood does not have direct access to 209th Street and currently relies on other routes. Mayor Debra Wimpee empathized with the situation, sharing a similar personal experience and noting that undeveloped land is often eventually built on despite assurances. She also pointed out the challenge of real estate representations about future development and invited further clarification from staff and the applicant.

Todd Walls acknowledged the property owner’s right to develop but raised concerns about impacts to nearby residents, including loss of views, erosion, privacy, and property values. Rather than opposing the project outright, he requested a compromise—specifically a 40–50 foot tree buffer near the pond—to preserve some natural screening and mitigate impacts, suggesting it would benefit both current and future residents.

Allen Betchan of ABB Engineering explained that the pond in question is an existing detention facility serving earlier phases of the development and will continue to function as part of the system. He noted the project is designed with multiple access points, primarily directing traffic east toward 37th Street rather than through existing neighborhoods, which should limit traffic impacts and even improve connectivity. He also clarified that the layout aims to manage flow and minimize cut-through traffic while maintaining proper drainage and infrastructure.

The discussion addressed resident concerns while providing clarification from the applicant and staff about how the development will function.

The engineer explained that much of the western area near the creek will remain undeveloped due to steep terrain and floodplain conditions, preserving significant green space. While not all trees can be guaranteed to remain due to utilities and drainage needs, the intent is to retain as much natural area as possible, especially around the detention pond.

Traffic concerns were addressed by noting that most vehicle flow will be directed east to 37th Street (209th), minimizing cut-through traffic in existing neighborhoods and potentially improving connectivity. The development is a continuation of the same neighborhood, with consistent home styles, pricing, HOA rules, and shared amenities, rather than a separate subdivision.

Timing was also clarified, with construction likely beginning months after approvals and homes not appearing for roughly two years. Officials emphasized that future development in such areas is guided by the city’s comprehensive plan, which is publicly available and outlines expected land uses, reinforcing that development was anticipated even if not always clearly communicated to buyers.

MOTION: A motion was made by Johnnie Parks, seconded by Lisa Ford

10. Preview Ordinances - NONE

11. Ordinances

- A. 26-447 Consideration, discussion, and possible adoption of Ordinance No. 3905 Amending Chapter 7, an ordinance amending Chapter 7, Article XVII of the Code of Ordinances relating to short-term rentals; providing new and revised definitions; establishing and strengthening operating standards; requiring interior posting, noise monitoring, and security cameras; establishing occupancy and parking limits; requiring advertising disclosures and hosting-platform cooperation; capping licenses per owner in residential districts; providing enforcement, notice, appeals, and penalties; adopting an appendix checklist; providing for codification; repealer; severability; and declaring an effective date

Trevor Dennis, City Attorney, presented Item 26-447 and summarized updates to the proposed short-term rental ordinance, explaining that it had undergone multiple revisions following community input, including a work session and prior council discussions.

He highlighted two key additions. First, a “safe harbor” provision, which allows discretion for the city not to penalize owners who proactively report issues at their own property, depending on circumstances. Second, a performance-based incentive, providing a 20% reduction in renewal fees for operators who have no nuisance or serious incidents over 12 months.

He noted that these changes were made in response to public feedback and that concerns raised by community members—such as those submitted by a local short-term rental owner—had largely already been addressed within the updated ordinance. He offered to answer further questions and clarify how the ordinance handles those concerns.

The discussion emphasized both the need for the ordinance and how its incentives work.

Council Member Ford expressed support for the regulations, noting they help prevent short-term rentals from becoming disruptive in neighborhoods, and thanked leadership for addressing the issue. City Attorney Trevor Dennis reinforced that the ordinance was driven by real incidents—ranging from disorderly conduct to more serious situations—highlighting the need for stronger oversight.

Council member Green clarified how the incentive (“carrot”) works, and Mr. Dennis explained that the 20% fee reduction is applied on a rolling, year-by-year basis. It does not accumulate over time—operators can receive up to a 20% discount each year they remain compliant, but it resets annually based on the previous year’s performance.
